

Results

What can I do if I believe my results are incorrect?

Student Rights + Support can provide advice on reviewing your results.

STUDENT
RIGHTS + SUPPORT

I have failed a unit, what can I do?

If you have failed a unit, you can contact your lecturer or tutor for group or individual feedback.

To view your exam paper refer to your faculty exam viewing procedures. Please note: If you are going overseas and you are unable to view your exam paper, contact your lecturer.

I have passed my assessment but expected a higher mark, how can I have my mark reviewed?

If you passed an assessment piece or unit but think you should have received a higher mark you can ask for it to be reviewed. Firstly, request individual feedback. If you are still not satisfied contact your Chief Examiner to request a review of your mark. The review should be undertaken by an independent examiner.

I have failed my final unit, what can I do?

In some cases, if you fail a unit with a grade of 45–49, you may be eligible to sit a supplementary exam. Your faculty will contact you if you are eligible.

See: <https://www.monash.edu/exams/changes/supplementary>

What if I have failed one or more units?

If you fail a unit you may get an Early Warning Letter after the release of results each semester. Refer to our Early Warning Letter flyer for more information. If you have failed a number of units you may be at risk of exclusion at the end of the year. Refer to our Academic Progress: Notice of Referral and Hearing flyer for more information.